Dear Mr. Valentine:

Thank you for your August 12, 2013 letter about the Social Security program. We reviewed your inquiry and we do not believe your request has any basis in law and therefore has no bearing on your Social Security number or your obligations under the law.

Social Security coverage is mandatory. People cannot voluntarily end their participation in the program. Unless specifically exempt by law, everyone working in the United States must pay Social Security taxes.

— False

The authority for the collection of taxes, including Social Security taxes is located in the Internal Revenue Code, not the Social Security Act. (See sections 3101(a) and 3102(a) of the Internal Revenue Code.) The law also does not permit a refund of Social Security taxes. Please direct any questions you may have about tax liability to the Internal Revenue Service at the address below:

The purpose of the Social Security number was to keep an accurate record of each individual's earnings, and subsequently to monitor benefits paid under the Social Security program. Once you have a Social Security number, we cannot cancel or destroy the record. By law, Social Security must maintain wage and self-employment income records for each individual who has work covered under the program. Your number is relevant and necessary for that record keeping purpose. Consequently, valid numbers are permanently part of our records.

The Supreme Court has upheld the constitutionality of the Social Security Act. We will not respond further to your correspondence about voluntary participation in the Social Security program or the withdrawal of Social Security taxes.
